Slovenian bail-in: the harshest treatment to date

- Slovenia – December 2013 (NLB, NKBM, Abanka, Probanka, Factor banka) and December 2014 (Banka Celje):
  - all shareholders are wiped out without compensation
  - all subordinated bondholders are wiped out without compensation
- NLB, NKBM, and Abanka were, and still are, the systemic banks in Slovenia
- The state was the majority shareholder in NLB and NKBM, and indirectly in Abanka, and held a controlling stake in them throughout their existence, i.e. ever since Slovenia's independence in 1991; furthermore, the state and state-owned NLB together held a controlling stake in Banka Celje

Slovenian bail-in: the harshest treatment so far

- The state also had a deposit in the systemic banks (1356 mn € in NLB, 822 mn € in Abanka, 361 mn € in NKBM), and the national Companies Act dictates in its Art. 498 that "*in bankruptcy procedure or compulsory settlement, a loan made by the majority owner shall be considered to form assets of the company"
- The national Banking Law did not override this article, and further stated in its Art. 318 that "a bank cannot be subject to compulsory settlement", meaning that compulsory write-down of its creditors claims was explicitly forbidden
- The prospectus of all these banks' subordinated bonds with maturity stated that "risk of loss can only materialize in the case of the bank's bankruptcy"

Central Bank independence / recent discussion on Asset Quality Review and Stress tests of Slovenian banks

Dear Prime Minister,

I am writing with respect to certain public discussions and allegations concerning the Bank of Slovenia and the members of its decision-making bodies. Some public statements have in particular referred to the Asset Quality Review and Stress tests of Slovenian banks carried out in 2013 and the subsequent recapitalisation and bail-in of subordinated bonds.

As you know, the exercise and the measures taken by the Bank of Slovenia in the process, in particular regarding the bail-in of subordinated bonds, were necessary to ensure compliance with EU legislation and state aid rules.

Full independence is a prerequisite for a national central bank to effectively perform its tasks entrusted by the Treaty for monetary policy and by secondary EU legislation for bank supervision.

The Commission is reassured by recent statements of the Government and leaders of the coalition parties reaffirming their commitment to safeguarding the credibility and the independence of the Bank of Slovenia and its Governor.

Slovenian bail-in: the more recent developments

Looking forward, to help safeguard the independence of the Bank of Slovenia and its Governor as enshrined in the Treaty, it would be useful to reiterate the importance of this central element of the European economic policy framework in the upcoming special parliamentary session, scheduled to our knowledge for 13 March, on the 2013 Asset Quality Review and Stress tests and the subsequent bank recapitalisation.

More generally, it would be important to promote a domestic political dialogue that is conducive to safeguarding central bank independence.

The Commission finally trusts that any concern the ECB raised in its legal opinion on the amendment to the Law on the Bank of Slovenia proposed by individual MPs will be fully addressed before this legislative initiative is further considered by the Parliament.

The Commission will continue to monitor this matter and is of course at the disposal of the authorities of Slovenia for any further exchange on this important issue.

Yours sincerely,

Valdis DOMBROVSKIS

Slovenian police raid central bank over 2013 bank overhaul

6. July 2016 ob 14:06
Ljubljana - MMC RTV SLO

Slovenian police said on Wednesday they were conducting an investigation of business premises in four locations in Ljubljana over possible irregularities during Slovenia's bank overhaul in 2013.

The central bank, the Bank of Slovenia, confirmed that "some of its employees" were being investigated, but declined to comment on local media reports that the bank's governor, Bostjan Jazbec, was among them.

Jazbec sits on the European Central Bank governing council.

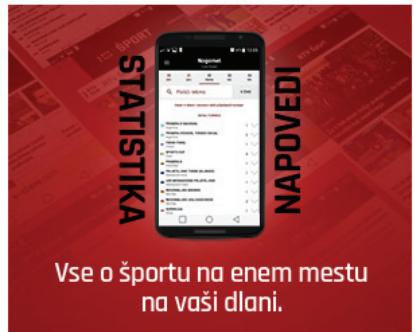

The police said the issue was about an assessment of one of the banks rescued by the state in 2013 which meant the bank could scrap its obligations towards holders of subordinated bonds and subordinated debt in the value of 257 million euros.

In 2013 the previous government had to pour more than 3 billion euros into local banks to prevent them from collapsing under a large amount of bad loans. In that way the country also narrowly avoided an international bailout.

As part of the bank overhaul about 600 million euros of subordinated bonds were scrapped in five banks.

Seizure of ECB information on 6 July 2016

Dear Mr Fišer,

I was informed by Mr Jazbec, the Governor of Banca Slovenije, that Slovenian authorities searched the premises of Banca Slovenije on 6 July 2016 and seized ECB information held by Banca Slovenije, in particular information stored on the internal network of Banca Slovenije and on IT hardware used by the Governor, a former Deputy Governor and some staff members in the course of a pre-criminal investigation procedure.

Seizure of information owned or held by the ECB, irrespective of where the information is located and whether it is classified or not, infringes the Protocol on the Privileges and Immunities of the European Union (Article 2 in conjunction with Article 22(1)).

I formally protest against such unlawful seizure of ECB information and call upon the Slovenian authorities to remedy this infringement. In addition, the ECB will also explore possible appropriate legal remedies under Slovenian law.

Furthermore, the ECB was informed that the relevant Slovenian authorities were made aware that the seized equipment contains ECB information and that such information is protected under directly applicable primary EU law. Therefore, the ECB deplores that there was no attempt to find a solution reconciling the conduct of the pre-criminal investigations with the ECB's privilege on inviolability of its archives. In this context, the ECB affirms its consistent stance not to interfere with national (pre-) criminal investigations.

JUDGMENT OF THE COURT (Grand Chamber)
19 July 2016 (*)

(Reference for a preliminary ruling — Validity and interpretation of the Banking Communication from the Commission — Interpretation of Directives 2001/24/EC and 2012/30/EU — State aid to banks in the context of the financial crisis — Burden-sharing — Writing off equity capital, hybrid capital and subordinated debt — Principle of protection of legitimate expectations — Right to property — Protection of the interests of shareholders and others — Reorganisation and winding up of credit institutions)

In Case C-526/14,

On those grounds, the Court (Grand Chamber) hereby rules:

1. The Communication from the Commission on the application, from 1 August 2013, of State aid rules to support measures in favour of banks in the context of the financial crisis ('Banking Communication') must be interpreted as meaning that it is not binding on the Member States.
2. Articles 107 to 109 TFEU must be interpreted as not precluding points 40 to 46 of the Banking Communication in so far as those points lay down a condition of burden-sharing by shareholders and holders of subordinated rights as a prerequisite to the authorisation of State aid.
3. The principle of the protection of legitimate expectations and the right to property must be interpreted as not precluding points 40 to 46 of the Banking Communication in so far as those points lay down a condition of burden-sharing by shareholders and holders of subordinated rights as a prerequisite to the authorisation of State aid.
4. Articles 29, 34, 35 and 40 to 42 of Directive 2012/30/EU of the European Parliament and of the Council of 25 October 2012 on coordination of safeguards which, for the protection of the interests of members and others, is required by Member States' companies within the meaning of the second paragraph of Article 5 of the Communication on the functioning of the internal market in respect of the formation of public limited liability companies and the maintenance and alteration of their capital, with a view to making such safeguards equivalent, must be interpreted as not precluding points 40 to 46 of the Banking Communication in so far as those points lay down a condition of burden-sharing by shareholders and holders of subordinated rights as a prerequisite to the authorisation of State aid.
5. The Banking Communication must be interpreted as meaning that the measures for converting hybrid capital and subordinated debt or writing down their principal, as provided for in point 44 of that communication, must not exceed what is necessary to overcome the capital short-fall of the bank concerned.
6. The seventh indent of Article 2 of Directive 2001/24/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 4 April 2001 on the reorganisation and winding up of credit institutions must be interpreted as meaning that burden-sharing measures such as those provided for in points 40 to 46 of the Banking Communication fall within the scope of the concept of 'reorganisation measures', within the meaning of that provision of that directive.
